KEYNOTE SPEAKER

Susan 'BOON' Murray, Ed.D., CCLS, CTRS

BOON teaches child life and therapeutic recreation coursework at University of Wisconsin-La Crosse since 1999 where she professes the power of play for healing and revitalization. She earned her doctorate at Temple University in 1997 and taught at University of Memphis and SUNY Brockport. BOON wrote a faculty development grant in 2005 to become a CCLS and develop child life coursework. She has worked casual coverage positions in child life at St. Joseph Children's Hospital and Clinics in Marshfield, Wisconsin.

Boon is certified in journaling through the Center for Journal Therapy and enjoys facilitating 'finding the friend at the end of your pen' in paper sack journals. She became a Certified Compassion Fatigue Educator in 2008 through the Oklahoma Traumatology Institute and a Certified Compassion Fatigue Therapist through an approved Green Cross Curriculum by the Upper Midwest Traumatology Institute. In June 2012, she became a Certified Playmaker when the life is good foundation rolled out its Playmaker Training to Child Life Specialists. This adventure gave BOON a new and natural signature focus on playfulness to revitalize CCLS' as adult caregivers and help them mediate the emotional stress of doing therapeutic work as they create intentional self-care plans.
